GOD IS LOVE AND NOTHING ELSE

PRAISE THE LORD.

LETTER FROM GEORGE O. BARNES

[The great length of Bro. Barnes' last letter got us a little behind in his correspondence, but we will publish it all if it takes all the summer.]

HAVANTON, KY., SEPT. 21, 1888.

DEAR INTERIOR.—Delightful indeed has been our past two weeks' experience. In the first place we have had a gloriously successful meeting, whose records will be fully unfolded when "the books are opened." For the present, we have known as much as we are well able to bear, of sinners saved; saints uplifted and bodies healed. "Spirit, soul and body" are in bondage and our gospel aims to set all free. It has reached its mark, most memorably, in these river towns of Bellevue and Dayton, with many from Covington and Newport thrown in. Our Hall is in Bellevue, our "home" is in Dayton. These growing places are mainly "dormitories" of the great city across the Ohio river, with little individuality of their own. Very few places of business here, and they only to supply, strictly, local and temporary wants. The people do their shopping, and largely their marketing, in Cincinnati; and it would not pay to attempt competition, with the grand establishments within such easy reach of purchasers.

Next, we have had delightful welcome and perfect freedom of domestic life in the "Pink Cottage" of our dear Bro. Lay, who opened this elastic home of his and took us all in. He and Sister Lay have made us feel so much that all we saw was ours, to use as we liked, that we have had no wish ungratified. This rare hospitality only comes from the gospel of LOVE and Nothing Else. You are not startled by the intruding thought that there is something behind the curtain, if only it were lifted. He is a true co-artist, but has refused all contracts so long as the meeting lasts. He gives himself wholly to it. He rented the Hall for ten days to begin with; keeps unlimited street car tickets for the use of the Troupe; never lets us spend a cent, when he is with us; that he can prevent; and in every generous way possible bids us thrice welcome in the Name of the LORD. We are greatly touched by the open-hearted hospitality shown us by these Saints. "Given to hospitality" might be inscribed over the door of this Dayton "Pink Cottage." Others, before we came, knew him for "Giant, mine host," and yet others, after we are gone, will "rise up and call him and his good wife blessed."

The rooms of this attractive domicile are lavishly decorated by his own hand, in the prettiest style of his beautiful art, and the frescoes would do credit to a $20,000 house. But when love holds the brush, a cottage and palace come together. Where his wife and children are, is the spot where any adornment is in order however elaborate. They have two children—the boy of 10 and a baby less than a year old. We all think "Bibbileens," as we name her, a wonderful infant; and she is a most patient little one, or she would long since have resented our persistent demonstrations; seeing we devour her with kisses on the slightest provocation. "Jack's" baby at Danville was a darling, whom we became much attached to; and it is good in the LORD to give us another little pet here; not to take her place, but to supplement her in the realm of our hearts, where there is room for all the babies in the world. Our baby goes to church every night; behaves herself like a lady; and her little white bonnet has been an inspiration to us throughout. When Bro. Barnes grows unintelligible or prolix, she goes to sleep, like the sensible "wee lassie" she is; and when we get home she is ready for a roup till bed time. We leave Sister Lay to break her into regular habits again, after all this religious dissipation, and our departure. I am so glad there will be babies in heaven, that will never grow up, but be the "well springs of pleasure," as Tupper calls them, there, that they have been here. "Or such is the Kingdom of Heaven!" saith the LORD. And again, "There angels do always behold the face of my Father in Heaven," a promise full of joy, whatever the exact meaning of it may be.

Bro. Lay painted his cottage pink. If you enter the sitting-room the first thing that greets the eye above the mantel is a prettily executed bit of lettering, in his own artistic style: "Praise the LORD! God is LOVE and Nothing Else." Over the two doors leading out of the sitting-room there are two inscriptions. One: "I will Come Again." Over the other: "Even so, Come Quickly!" From which my intelligent reader will gather what school of theology he prefers. Outsiders call him a "Barneite." He has already lost money-paying contracts, on account of his connection with the gospel this "Troupe" preaches and sings. Perhaps it may yet cost him more dearly; but he is one of the kind who will "take joyfully the spoiling of his goods" for Jesus' sake; knowing that back of all he has "an enduring inheritance;" that is beyond the reach of "moth" or "rust;" or malignant prejudice. Meanwhile he is an exquisite workman, who loves his beautiful art, and will not swindle you, because he loves the LORD Who is LOVE and Nothing Else. "LOVE worketh his neighbor no ill," and needs no watching. You couldn't bribe Love to do a wrong. If men would only settle contracts on a moral instead of a so-called "business" basis, how many thousands of dollars would be saved? But I grant you "average christianity" is not to be trusted, and the rogues are many who superintend Sunday-schools, and preside at Y. M. C. A. meetings; and even lead classes and preach eloquently. But no one who really believes God is love and Nothing Else is caught napping thus by the "roaring lion," because he who "keeps himself in the love of God," that "wicked one touches not;" for the simple reason that the LORD in turn keeps him safe.

The great scandals that have crept into the Church, came in over the back of false teaching as to God's character. "If God does wrong, why may not I?" has wrought more mischief than can be told. Once and again have I heard business men say, "I would rather deal with an infidel than a christian," so common have these defections among christians become. Cannot even the purblind see that there must be a trapdoor cause for all this? I find it in low thoughts of God, when we admit that God robbed the Egyptians by sacred right, and you have, full-blown, the morality of the Puritans, in robbing the Indians of his ancestral acres. "The earth belongs to the Saints; we are the Saints." "Lo! the poor Indian," vanishing from the scene. The abounding cashier, or pious defrauding treasurer finds solace as he thinks, whatever his shortcomings, they cannot begin to compare with the peccadilloes of the "Blessed God." Who turned the Canaanites out of house and home to make room for His chosen, just because He chose to do it. Election without reason beyond His OWN WILL, covers all the ground.

No wonder such a tree bears such fruit; and that Calvin chanted the Canticles, as his victim Servetus roasted before a green-wood fire! When will dominion possessed souls assert their rights and regain their freedom?" "How long, oh! Lord, how long?" cries the weary and heavy-laden believer.

Our dear friends of former years—the Stoddards, of Brookville, Ind.,—came over to see us, and gave us a Macedonian cry to "come over and help" them. We had not seen the doctor since we parted in Shakespear Lane, London, in '83. It was a joyful meeting all around. They have sailed over tempest-tossed seas since we met, but are now in smoother waters, and looking forward to lives of increased usefulness in the vineyard of the Lord. We expect to go to Brookville next, God willing. It is only about 40 miles out of Cincinnati. The Hoosiers are mad on politics just now, but we hope to edge in a little gospel, and do them some good, if not much. We have met, off and on, many Kentuckians from various parts of the State. It is delightful to run up on familiar faces, unexpectedly, in a strange place.

Of course we went to the ever attractive "Zoo," once. Our old favorites were nearly all there, and a baby jaguar and two half-grown lion cubs had put in an appearance since our last visit in '83. I rather dole on prairie dogs and the amusing colony of these marmots of the Western plains as is attractive as ever. Two of them got up a little "side show" for our especial entertainment, consisting in the father of one family circle, or head of one hole, finding his spouse under ground proceeded to bury her in a very energetic fashion by shoveling dirt into the mouth of the family burrow; packing it on her remorselessly; and biting and scratching her nose very energetically whenever she succeeded in pushing up to the surface. It seemed all in fun, however, for after we had laughed at him awhile, he grew tired of his little game; running away to another part of the enclosure and allowing the buried "cave spouse" to work her way out of her earthen prison-house, which she promptly did, looking very dirty and rumpled, in fur and spirits. They are "too cute for anything," as a school girl would express it.

But the attraction of the "Zoo," centre in "Mr. and Mrs. P. Rooney," the most wonderful pair of chimpanzees perhaps in the world. I saw the famous one in the Zoological Gardens of London; and that in the Jardin des Plantes in Paris; with others in Australia and India; but "Mr. and Mrs. Rooney" beat them all. To see them sitting at table, eating with a fork; wiping their mouths with napkins; and going through other motions of civilization, is worth the entrance fee many times over. Then having dined, Mr. Rooney, as "lord of creation," takes the rocking-chair for his ease, leaving one that does not rock as good enough for Mrs. R.—being the "weaker vessel." She tries to make her chair rock, bumps her head against the back of it, as she sees her liege lord do, with his more pliable bit of furniture; and accepts the stiffer position with a grace few of the softer sex, among us, would imitate. The creatures are fearfully human; but the "gulf fixed" is there, that may not be crossed. No education has ever been able to get human speech, or an approximation to it, out of them; however like their vocal organs may be to ours. And no training can stir a spiritual nature and a spiritual discernment; for the Spirit is not there. God never made a monkey in His image and likeness." But careless observers, ignorant of the triple nature of mankind, can easily accept Darwin's speculations, as they look upon a well trained chimpanzee. I will add that Mr. Rooney has one eye in mourning, by reason of a curious abnormal growth of a patch of black hair over the left side of his face. It gives him the exact look of one of the "lower orders" of our race, after a fight, in which he has "had the worst of it." I will add further that after the dinner "things" had been cleared away and Mr. Rooney had rocked himself awhile, he mounted the table, where his admirable "cutcha" had been displayed to the wondering crowd, and deliberately executed a sort of war-dance, as if to express his personal loathing of civilization and all its cramped ways; and that he thus symbolically trampled on them all. Having relieved himself of this assertion of nature over art, he went through a flying trapeze exercise, like a human monkey would do, and disported himself in other monkeyish ways; plainly telling us that he preferred all this to being stiffly seated at table, with a fork in lieu of diggers, and a napkin substituted for the hairy back of his hand-like paw. Wonderful pair, are Mr. and Mrs. Rooney. Go and see them when you visit Cincinnati.

The closing service was held in the old Fellows Hall in Newport. The Catholics had engaged our Hall for Saturday night, before our meeting commenced, for a magic lantern exhibition in aid of some charity, and we had to give it up. Our concluding service in Balke's Opera House, Bellevue, was, therefore, held at 3 p.m. Both meetings were fully attended and the dear Lord gave us, as usual, a parting "kiss of His lips" as we send-off to another field.

We shall never cease to feel thankful that He led us to Dayton, through dear Bro. Lay. It has been a glorious series of services, full of blessing to the Troupe and those who so kindly received us as the "ambassadors of Christ." Praise Him forever!

Ever in Jesus, GREGORY O. BARNES.

CRAB ORCHARD.

—Collier & Bastin have purchased the late G. W. James' stock of dry goods.

—Dr. W. B. Arment has bought out J. H. Hutchings' interest in the firm of Hutchings & Chadwick.

—Madam Rumor strongly whispers of a wedding that is to occur here about the middle of this month.

—Mr. Sam Holman has been the happiest man in town since Sept. 27. A fine boy arrived at his house that day.

James are spending several days with relatives at Danville. Mr. M. Livingston and wife, Miss Lura Doores and Mr. J. R. Bailey visited Cincinnati last week. Mr. J. F. Holdam accompanied them and is still in the city.

FIELD'S MINSTRELS.—The minstrels held high carnival last night. Fun, music and the clever specialties presented by this company amused the large audience that greeted them. There's a dash and go to the entertainment that keeps the interest of the spectator aroused from first to last. The singing, the dancing, the intricate marches, the music, costumes, etc., are superior in every respect. The company is very strong musically, and much of their success is due to this fact. The fun is pure and wholesome, and if we were to prescribe for a person with the blues we should send them to Field & Co.'s Minstrels. At Walton's Opera House Oct. 13.

—R. G. Dunn & Co. say the increase of more than 550,000,000 bushels in the corn crop far outweighs in value any loss in the yield of wheat and also any possible loss in the yield of cotton. But the yield of oats is also the largest on record and the yield of hay and potatoes excellent. It is safe to say that this year's agricultural products will represent at least $100,000,000 more than last year at average prices for both.

—As to who butt the bull off the bridge, we can't tell, unless it was the fellow that didn't use Ganter's magic chicken cholera cure. So "no cure no pay" by McRoberts & Stagg.

—Wm. McNew's saw engine was entirely demolished a few days ago by some of the machinery getting out of order when under very high speed. No one hurt, but some very narrow escapes.

—A man was found Saturday night on Cleveland bridge, Whitley county, where some train had struck and fatally mangled him. His identity could not be ascertained. His remains were left.

—Judge Fish, who had a severe stroke of apoplexy some months since, is able to about on crutches. C. C. Williams is taking in Cincinnati. Z. F. Smith, former State School Superintendent, was here during the week.

FASHIONABLE clothing, city styles, for men and boys made to order by John H. Craig & Son, with Browning, King & Co., New York, and Wanamaker & Brown, Philadelphia; 1,000 foreign and American fabrics to select from. No fit—no sale.

THE report that Capt. Higgins Kelley had been killed by the cars at Junction City is, we are glad to say, untrue, tho' he had a narrow escape. He was walking on the L. & N. track, when a freight train came along, and although it whistled repeatedly his deafness prevented him from taking warning and it ran him down. Fortunately the pilot struck him in such a manner as to push him off and escaped death, though he is pretty badly bruised up, but will recover.

HONORINE.—Nellie, the bright little daughter of Mrs. John D. Carpenter, suffered an accident Monday evening, which will injure her for life, if it does not cause her death. She was playing in a drawer, where she found a Smith & Wesson 38 calibre pistol, and in taking it out the hammer struck the side, firing it off with fearful result. The ball struck in her temple, passed through one eye, destroying it, and ranging around the forehead, buried itself in the skull above the other, from whence it was with difficulty taken by Drs. Brown, Aleorn and Johnston. The brain was penetrated and portions of it oozed out of the opening. At last accounts the little sufferer was doing tolerably well and was conscious when roused out of the stupor she lies in for a greater part of the time.

THE COURT OF CLAIMS finally adjourned Wednesday, after allowing, we understand, some $1,500 less than in 1887. Among the large claims allowed are to Mrs. Sue Holmes, for keeping the poor-house, $2,143.90, which is less than last time, and $780 to Jailer Sam Owens for keeping the county prisoners. The doctors, as usual, come in with very large bills for attending paupers, but many of them were cut, some as much as half of the amounts claimed. W. M. Bright was reelected treasurer and Dr. O. H. McRoberts jail physician, both without opposition. Dr. W. M. Doores, who has been poor-house physician for several years, was defeated by Dr. J. D. Pettus 13 to 0, although their bids were $97.25 and $125 respectively. F. F. Robbitt offered for poor-house keeper and urged his claims in an "eloquent appeal," but the court was so well satisfied with the management of the institution by Mrs. Sue Holmes that they elected her for the third term, the vote standing 12 to 1 in her favor, notwithstanding Bobbitt's bid was $30 a year for boarding adults and $23 for children, against hers of $65 and $40 respectively. This is a highly deserved compliment to Mrs. Holmes, who has proved herself more than worthy of the trust imposed in her. She is a highly accomplished lady and deserves the highest praise for the successful manner in which she has fought the battle of life singly and alone. A committee was appointed to survey the Turnersville & Vandever's turnpike from McCormack's Church to Knob Lick and report when completed. Sheriff Newland was allowed a credit against the State of 172 cents on the dollar on $1,508 worth of personal property upon which he could collect no tax. G. B. Cooper was allowed $25 for making indexes and other work. The salary of the county judge was raised to $800, the county attorney's to $20 and the school superintendent's to $800. An order was made to have the roads redistricted and measured, report to be made to the court of levy in March. Adjourned finally Wednesday afternoon.

SCIENCE NOTES.

This Berlin Academy has granted to Dr. von Lemmenfeld the sum of one thousand marks to aid him in investigating the physiological functions (chiefly the digestion) of sponges.

Mr. HENRY TEAL, the well-known theatrical stage-manager, has invented a new scenic appliance for the stage—the setting sun changing to a rising moon. He has applied for a patent.

Cedar-wood pulp is now made into a paper for underlaying carpets, wrapping up wool, etc., as a preservative against moths. The wood used is the horophore wasted chips of the pencil manufacturer.

Two remains of several prehistoric canoes have been found at the bottom of some lakes drained off in upland in Central Sweden. They were made by hollowing out of trunks of trees by fire. One had evidently been sunk on purpose, being full of large stones.

The European Union of Astronomers has met at Harvard Observatory recently, that news had been received from the Royal Observatory at the Cape of Good Hope, in South Africa, of the first observation there, on Friday evening, August 8, of the celebrated Encke's comet, one of the most interesting objects of its class in the history of astronomy. It is now seven years since this comet was first observed, and it may be said to have come of age, as it has made just twenty-one appearances.

The time of day in France is at present reckoned on three different systems—Paris time, decided by the Observatory; local time, which varies forty-seven minutes fifteen seconds between East and West; and rail-way time, which is five minutes behind Paris. From May 1 next, however, one uniform time will be observed throughout France—heure nationale—reckoned on the Paris meridian. At frontier towns there will be two clocks, showing respectively the time according to Paris and the neighboring country.

The military microphone is now being tried in France, not only to give warning to the passage of troops from afar, but to indicate the different branches of the army in movement, and to furnish an approximate idea of the numbers of men and horses on the advance. It consists of a sounding-plate buried in the soil across and along any route, and connected by a long wire-conductor to the receiving-disk of the apparatus in position, which has the necessary arrangements for making the sounds louder and readily distinguishable.

"ENGINEERING" describes an English invention designed to enable the wearer to breathe and work in comfort in dense smoke and poisonous gases. The apparatus consists of a respirator with an India-rubber mouth-piece. The respirator is held by two projections, which are grasped between the teeth and a flange, which lies between the teeth and the lips, additional security being provided by an elastic band passing round the head. The air is drawn by the wearer through a series of small filters, containing respectively wet sponge, cotton wool, cotton wool damped with glycerine, animal charcoal. These filters are very lightly packed, so that there is no resistance to the act of inspiration, and they are provided with valves which direct the air expired from the lungs into the external atmosphere. The entire apparatus weighs less than a pound, and can be used without previous practice. Protection is afforded to the eyes by a pair of spectacles with India-rubber rims, which press tightly on the cheek and brow, and exclude all smoke. Mechanical wipers are added, to enable the glasses to be cleaned without removal.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

Dr. Pasteur's Application of Vaccination for Preventing Splenic Fever Among Domestic Animals.

Among the recent valuable discoveries of the famous French physician, M. Pasteur, is that of the vaccination of domestic animals for the prevention of the dire disease known as anthrax, or splenic fever.

The marked success attending his system, in combating the rinderpest in Europe, encouraged Mr. J. H. Lamprey to bring the subject under the notice of the Government of India, where no efficient remedy was known for this rapidly fatal illness, which annually carries off a large percentage of cattle of every kind.

An order in council has been issued, after the most careful investigation of the merits of the system and of the probability of securing its favorable reception by native proprietors. In order to carry out this object some native Indian students, who have received their education at the Cirencester Agricultural College, are now undergoing a course of instruction at the Paris laboratory.

The frost has done much damage in the tobacco growing portions of the State, fully a third of the crop being ruined in some localities. But the raisers needn't cry. There is still enough for all demands and the price will be higher.

—Secretary E. A. Tipton, of the Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, has our thanks for ticket and invitation to the races, which will be held in Lexington 8-12. THE ELECTRIC FIST.

An electric fist is in operation in the Ohio Iron and Steel Company's Works, Cleveland, O., which picks up steel billets, ingots and other heavy pieces of iron, and moves them about as required, or loads them on to cars, saving the labor of many men. The lifting apparatus becomes an electro-magnet through the application of electricity, and is of course very attractive to iron and steel, though not so much so to the poor laborers who are thrown out of work thereby. There is some apparatus constantly being invented to lift the broadsides of a poor man's hands, and the electric fist may be classed among other grasping monopolies. By the way, couldn't Edison invent an electric fist to do the prize-fighting for the country? It would do away with the necessity of training, and the accident of broken wrists or hands would not be likely to enter into the calculations of defeat or victory. It could be made to hit straight from the shoulder, and might be relied on to even knock John L. Sullivan out.—St. Louis.
